Ise Jingu <https://www.isejingu.or.jp/>

The spiritual home of the Japanese people with the history of over 2000 years

Ise Jingu, affectionately known since ancient times as "Oise-san," began its history 2,000 years ago. The Shrine is officially called "Jingu," consisting of 125 Naiku and Geku. The precinct where thousand-year-old cedars grow, is filled with pure air and a refreshing feeling. Jingu is the spiritual home of the Japanese people, which welcomes visitors in any time.

Ise Jingu(Naiku)

Crossing the Ujibashi Bridge over the Isuzugawa River, there is Naiku sactuary. The deity Amaterasu-Omikami is the ancestral kami (Shinto deity) of the Sun and the guardian of all Japanese people. In addition to the Goshogu (main sanctuary), there are two other affiliated shrines and 10 auxiliary shrines.

Oharai-machi, Okage Yokocho

<https://okageyokocho.com/>

Toriimae-machi (a town in front of Naiku) where Ise's specialties are gathered

In Oharai-machi, which continues from the Ujibashi Bridge of Naiku, and Okage Yokocho located halfway, for which a townscape of Ise-ji route in the Edo to Meiji eras was reproduced, there are many Ise's specialties. Visitors can enjoy a leisurely stroll while looking for local foods and souvenirs.

Sightseeing

Ise Jingu(Geku)

Toyo'uke-no-Omikami, enshrined in Goshogu, is the guardian of cloth, food and shelter as well as industry who was invited 1,500 years ago to preside over Amaterasu's food. Also, there are three affiliated shrines in the precinct and Tsukiyomi-no-Miya Shrine nearby.

Ama (women divers) Hut Experience

Hospitality of Ama divers who well know the local sea

Ama huts, places where Ama divers rest after fishing, were reproduced. Ama divers tell stories about the sea sitting beside a fireplace. The taste of seafood while talking with real Ama divers is exceptional. This is a rare opportunity to experience the culture of Ama divers, which has been recognized as a Japanese Heritage.
